YALE UNIVERSITY

Affordable Care Act Notice

Yale University is providing the enclosed notice to comply with the requirements of the federal Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA). The notice provides you with instructions on how to access information about the Health Insurance Marketplace, which offers “one-stop-shopping” to find and compare private health insurance options.

You do not need to take any action. This government mandated notice is for information only.

You are eligible to participate in the Yale University group health plan. The Yale University group health plan provides more coverage to you at a lower cost than a Health Insurance Marketplace plan would and meets applicable government standards, including the minimum value standard. If you were to choose to buy insurance in the Marketplace instead of participating in the Yale University group health plan, you would not receive a contribution toward the cost of health benefits from the University.

You may review Yale’s benefits at www.yale.edu/benefits and next year’s benefits once annual enrollment begins in December. If you have any questions about Yale’s benefit programs, you may contact Employee Services, employee.services@yale.edu, or call (203) 432-5552.
Now that key parts of the health care law have taken effect, there is a new way to buy health insurance: the Health Insurance Marketplace. To assist you as you evaluate options for you and your family, this notice provides some basic information about the new Marketplace and employment-based health coverage offered by your employer.

What is the Health Insurance Marketplace?
The Marketplace is designed to help you find health insurance that meets your needs and fits your budget. The Marketplace offers "one-stop shopping" to find and compare private health insurance options. You may also be eligible for a new kind of tax credit that lowers your monthly premium right away.

Open enrollment for health insurance coverage through the Marketplace begins in November 2019 for coverage starting as early as January 1, 2020.

Can I Save Money on my Health Insurance Premiums in the Marketplace?
You may qualify to save money and lower your monthly premium, but only if your employer does not offer coverage, or offers coverage that doesn't meet certain standards. The savings on your premium that you're eligible for depends on your household income.

Does Employer Health Coverage Affect Eligibility for Premium Savings through the Marketplace?
Yes. If you have an offer of health coverage from your employer that meets certain standards, you will not be eligible for a tax credit through the Marketplace and may wish to enroll in your employer's health plan.

However, you may be eligible for a tax credit that lowers your monthly premium, or a reduction in certain cost-sharing, if your employer does not offer coverage to you at all or does not offer coverage that meets certain standards.

If the cost of a plan from your employer that would cover you (and not any other members of your family) is more than 9.5% of your household income for the year, or if the coverage your employer provides, does not meet the "minimum value" standard set by the Affordable Care Act, you may be eligible for a tax credit.

If you purchase a health plan through the Marketplace instead of accepting health coverage offered by your employer, then you may lose the employer contribution (if any) to the employer-offered coverage. Also, this employer contribution, as well as your employee contribution to employer-offered coverage, is often excluded from income for Federal and State income tax purposes.

Your payments for coverage through the Marketplace are made on an after-tax basis.

Note: An employer-sponsored health plan meets the "minimum value standard" if the plan's share of the total allowed benefit costs covered by the plan is no less than 60 percent of such costs (Section 36B(c)(2)(C)(ii) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986).
